

OKWU Grading and Feedback Policies

Two major sources of dissatisfaction and frustration among online students are lack of prompt feedback and/or ambiguous instructions.

To meet expectations, Instructors WILL:

- Respond to student questions promptly. Remember, online students are allowed to work on their time in the online environment. They will need you to be readily available to help them be successful. Please respond to students in a discussion thread, e-mail, voicemail message, or by any other means of communication within 24 hours, and no longer than 36 hours on your days offline.
- Provide useful and corrective feedback on assignments, tests, papers, and activities in a timely manner. A timely manner is within one week (7 days) of the posted assignment due date, and seven (7) days after the last day of class. Online classes are offered in an accelerated format. Grading and returning assignments before one week will help the student know if s/he has grasped key concepts. Timeliness will also help students avoid repeating the same mistakes in the current week.
- Provide clear explanations about how each activity or assignment will be graded. This should include any grading tools such as rubrics or checklists.
